HARRIS LAW & CO.

Protecting Families & Businesses Through All of Life's Journeys

A letter from Harris Law & Co. CEO Lindsay Harris

COVID-19 is changing everything about our daily life as we know it, and we're all focused on how to best protect and support our families, employees and clients, in the face of this crisis. On behalf of all Harris Law & Co., I want to let you know that our thoughts and prayers are with those who are affected.

All of us at Harris Law & Co. are focused on enabling our customers to be productive and collaborative during this challenging time. Here are a couple things we are doing to accomplish this goal:

Ensuring continuity of service

We recognize the critical role our services play in your family and business success. I'd like to assure you that we will remain fully operational unless directed by our health department or legislature. Our office is still open for meetings and signing of documents.

Making it easier than ever to do business with us

We are doing video or phone meetings with clients as much as we can. We are doing signings at our office. We have put COVID-19 protocols and procedures into place. We are sanitizing our office space before and after each client's signing to keep everyone safe.

And we are following guidelines for social distancing. This ensures our ability to continue to deliver our solutions and serve your needs.

Harris Law & Co. is here to support you during these unprecedented times. Our employees are available for any questions or concerns you have. We are in this together.

Above all, stay healthy and safe,
Lindsay
